

Jesus came “to seek and to save the lost.” That was His focus. And it has been a good reminder for me too that my time and energy are best spent pointing people to Him and His gospel.

Through our recent winter camps and discipleship trainings, We have been so encouraged to see God at work in this very way.

One camper was asked, “If you stood before God today and He asked why you should be allowed into heaven, what would you say?” She simply answered, “Because the Bible says that whoever believes in Jesus will be saved.” It was such a simple but beautiful expression of faith.

One church teacher shared that, for the first time in his life, he truly understood the gospel after attending our Leader Training. He said that looking back, the gospel had never really been the center of his life before, and that realization deeply moved him.

A student Ye-rang, shared, “As I learned the gospel, I felt a desire to share it with my friends. And I realized that I need to believe it for myself and live it out daily.”

Ji-ah said, “I had some head knowledge of the Bible before, but it didn’t feel personal. Through this training, I finally understood the gospel clearly, and I feel like my whole perspective has changed.”

And Chae-bin shared that starting her Saturdays in God’s Word has become such a joy that she now looks forward to Friday nights, excited for the next morning.

These are just a few glimpses of how God is moving in the lives of young people here. We are so thankful to witness it, and so grateful for your prayers that make this ministry possible.

Thank you, as always, for standing with us and praying for the youth of Korea. It truly means so much.

Praise and Prayer:

Lately, I’ve been thinking a lot about the conversations I’ve been having here in Korea. When I talk with teens, college students, and even adults, some pretty tough and controversial topics come up, and they are things that even Christians don’t always agree on. In those moments, I often feel this pressure to take a strong, conservative stance. I find myself trying hard to explain my perspective and even persuade others. But afterward, I’m sometimes left feeling a bit empty. I catch myself wondering, “Was that really the most important thing? What would Jesus have done in that moment?” As I’ve been reflecting, God has been gently reminding me of what truly matters. In Luke 19:10, we are reminded that
